A Sound Investment Financial Literacy
Elementary Workshops

A Sound Investment elementary workshops support junior and intermediate teachers in acquiring knowledge, skills and confidence to effectively integrate financial literacy education across all areas of the existing elementary curriculum.

ELEMENTARY WORKSHOP DESCRIPTION

Having trouble discerning the meaning of the complex terms connected with teaching Financial Literacy? Wondering how to effectively integrate financial literacy without having to drastically alter your existing program? In this A Sound Investment workshop, teachers will use technology and print resources to gain confidence in purposefully addressing Financial Literacy expectations found throughout the existing curriculum at the junior and intermediate levels.

Over the course of this three-day workshop, you will:

- identify Financial Literacy expectations and opportunities across the current curriculum in a variety of subject areas;
- become familiar with various areas of Financial Literacy vocabulary, concepts and skills;
- develop instructional and assessment strategies related to Financial Literacy;
- work collaboratively to develop lesson plans and resources that integrate rich Financial Literacy content and skills;
- increase knowledge of relevant technologies as a tool for motivating and engaging students;
- learn about resources from a variety of non-profit organizations, including The Investor Education Fund (IEF) and the Financial Consumer Agency of Canada; and
- share resources in a fun and interactive workshop format.

Participants will leave this workshop with a wealth of resources, ready-made lesson plans, and hands-on tools and strategies to help integrate Financial Literacy in the classroom starting this fall.

It is recommended that participants bring a laptop to the sessions as we will be using the internet to access a rich variety of resources. A USB flash drive filled with resources will be provided to all participants.
