Art:

Louise Nevelson's environmental sculptures demonstrate hospitality in her choice of materials. She welcomed all types of materials and object to create beauty. She worked with found objects, what others might even call “junk-furniture factory waste”, chair legs, discarded duck decoys, lettuce crates, toilet seats, milk boxes. Her best known pieces are large sculptural walls, such as the Sky Cathedrals, consisting of assemblages of boxes filled with wooden ornaments and these found objects.

- Try to create a piece of art from objects which you have found around you...see the beauty in all that is around you!
