Schools are closed; school bus transportation is cancelled

According to Environment Canada and the Weather Network, the forecast is for the accumulation of up to 15-25 centimetres of snow throughout the day starting this morning. The snow is expected to change to freezing rain and ice pellets later in the day. High winds are also expected.

Given the uncertainty around what the end of the day holds for road conditions and traffic, all school bus transportation is being cancelled for today and all schools are closed.
