Mother nature is not being kind to us this month, and we are experiencing yet another extremely cold start to the day.

With the windchill bringing temperatures into the minus 30s, there is the distinct possibility that our school bus companies may experience difficulties in starting some of their vehicles, which will mean longer than usual delays on many bus routes.

Parents who rely on school bus transportation should monitor the TSTG website for the latest information on bus delays. <https://busplannerweb.torontoschoolbus.org/Cancellations.aspx> Parents also have the option of choosing alternate transportation for their children.

School administrators will be monitoring local weather conditions, and consider adjustments to normal daily routines, to minimize exposure to the elements until temperatures improve.

Everyone is reminded to bundle up and stay safe.
